Workshop Wednesday Agenda

- What is the IDataHub?
- What is a Hubbit/Connector?
- Why upgrade?
- How to upgrade the IDataHub
- How to upgrade a Hubbit
- Q&A

What is the IDataHub?

The IDataHub is a middleware tool that is installed on your institution's server, that facilitates a wide variety of data integration transactions between your data systems and the Data Cookbook.

What is a Hubbit?

- A “Hubbit” is a functional widget that contains code, configuration templates, and connection interfaces for an integration run by the IDataHub.
- Examples:
  - Data Cookbook Connector
  - Data Management Core
  - JDBC Connector
  - DM_CData Connector

Why upgrade?

- Get regular security updates (Tomcat, Java)
- Get the latest version with newest features and bug fixes
- Simplifies support process
- Updating is like the plumbing in your house, it's easy to forget about because it's hidden in the walls, but you really want to be on the newest and best equipment!

How to upgrade the IDataHub and Hubbits

- Where to find current versions of the IDataHub and data integration Hubbits for Data Intelligence (Enterprise Plus) clients
- Secure download site:
  - my.educatedintegration.com
  - IDataHub Admin requests access, and downloads packages including documentation for installation
  - Can submit a support ticket if assistance is needed for installation – support@datacookbook.com
  - In the future, when updates are released, IDataHub Admin contacts will be notified by email
  - Announcements through Data Cookbook Forums

How to upgrade the IDataHub and Hubbits

Jeff Seaman:

- How to check current versions on local installation
- How to download new versions from secure download site
- Documentation access for installation process
  - with Hubbit or separately
- Quick walkthrough of upgrade process for IDataHub
- Quick walkthrough of upgrade process for Hubbits/Connectors

Summary

- Make sure you are on our distribution list for announcements when updates are released.
  - Submit a ticket to support@datacookbook.com
  - Ask that you be put on the Hub/Hubbit updates distribution list by Andy!
